

Claudia Imperatore

Claudia Imperatore is a PhD Candidate in Financial Accounting at IE Business School and she is a visiting PhD student at University of Chicago since 2014. She grew up in Italy where she received a master's degree in accounting and finance from University of Padova and a bachelor in business administration from the Second University of Naples, both with distinction.

The focus of her research is on earnings management, corporate disclosure, financial market dynamics and family firms. Her work has already been published in leading international journals like Journal of Accounting and Public Policy and European Accounting Review.